

Jenny Brookman
University College Supervisor
Chair, Cambridge AWiSE

I am a College Supervisor at the University of Cambridge for Medical and Veterinary Science Students, teaching on the Molecules in Medical Sciences Course. I also work for Staff Development on the Graduate Development Programme.

I gained my PhD in Biochemistry from the Australian National University and have since spent my research career in London, then Cambridge, specialising in developmental molecular genetics.

My current interests also focus on supporting women in their science careers through Transferable Skills Training, Networking and Career and Personal Development.

Cambridge
AWiSE

Association for Women in Science and Engineering